

THE TURE.

SATURDAY'S SPORT AT BENNING'S
Dalgasian Wins the First Race, St. James
Second, and Vermont the Third—Alleg
Crooked Business in the First Race—F

The attendance at Henning's Park on Saturday afternoon was only fair, and a large percentage of the crowd was attracted by the advertising. Had the public been properly informed, there would undoubtedly have been large crowds at the races, starting the first, a large and exciting quarter-steeple chase, as well as the second, a half-mile steeple chase, which was the principal point of attraction, and the third, a half-mile flat race. The first two races were heavily patronized. It was not hard for the winners in these lotteries, for their selfishness as they pocketed the cash cannot be described. There was a good deal of hand language used. However, when, after Galgahan had galloped home winner of the first race, and the thoughtless holdovers had either destroyed or thrown away the postcards, the judges announced all pools void.

A good start was effected at the first attempt, the horses running pretty evenly to the start. Little Pelham took the lead, St. James being followed by Kenny Third and Burgo. Four in this order ran to the half-mile post, but at the three-quarter mark the pace was so slow that the horses were compelled to drop back to fourth place. The pace being too hot for him, Burgo passed Ken- nedy Third to lead off St. James, but the colt did not obey the whip and was forced to remain where he was. The pace was so slow that the remainder of the race was never heated, although an easy winner, four lengths ahead of Burgo. The horses were then placed in the order of St. James, Spillman, the rider of Ken- nedy Third, and Burgo. The race was then continued to the home stretch, but, beyond a shake-up, no serious injury resulted.

First Heat.—They got off beautifully at the attempt, and a pretty race ensued to the quarter, where Vermont went to the front, and then he and the other horses began to trail along behind. No change took place the horses came into the home stretch, where Vermont led the mountain-bred, pile-driver, and the other horses followed. Vermont caused him to lose a few winners by three or four but, over the whole race, Vermont was over the top, and he was the winner by about the distance of a horse's length.

Second Heat.—When the starter cried, "Go!" the three horses could have been covered with blankets so easily did they get away, but as the first quarter Vermont gradually edged to the front, he was the winner by a few lengths.
